ROCKPORT

ROD MICKLEY INTERIOR DESIGN

Rod Mickley prides himself in his ability to interpret his clients' taste, vision, and lifestyle, and translate them into an appealing and functional reality. With this in mind, each design is a unique statement respecting the homeowner, as well as the architectural integrity of the residence. Attention to scale, color, detail, and function is an integral component of his designs.

A tall, antique sideboard provides a distinctive focal point and reflects the decidedly Caribbean feel of this engaging dining area. A mix of accessories and a large watercolor complements the dark woods of the furnishings and architectural details.

Location: Vero Beach, Florida

The foyer, with its natural palette and refined architectural detailing, presents an elegant first impression and functions as a hub to all the rooms of the house.

At the far end of a galley kitchen, a window seat acts as part of the breakfast room seating. The table base and chairs are painted distressed white to give the room a more tropical-island feel.
